Why Study ENG Abroad?

"To learn about literature from a different culture's perspective is truly rewarding. After studying abroad, I not only see the world differently, I see literature differently. To see where authors like Robert Louis Stevenson and Jane Austen spent their time writing is an amazing experience. Whether or not you should study abroad isn't really the question—the question is where do you want to go and how do you want it to change you forever?"

English Major Specifics:

When is the best time to study abroad?

English majors typically study abroad during their junior year, but anytime after freshman year is possible. Finding the most appropriate time to go abroad may often depend on academic background and certain prerequisites. Speak with IPC and departmental advisors and begin planning your study abroad experience early!

What courses should I take abroad vs. at UNCG?

English composition courses (ENG 101 and ENG 102) should be taken at UNCG. In addition, ENG 303 and ENG 305 should also be taken at UNCG. Literature course requirements transfer more flexibly, so with careful planning and preapproval of courses, students have many options for coursework taken abroad. WI and SI courses should be completed at UNCG and will not transfer from abroad. The English department recommends that students take a variety of elective and GEC courses abroad. In addition, the department recommends that students take foreign language and culture courses while abroad. This will benefit students personally and professionally. Speak with departmental study abroad advisors to start planning course sequencing and transferable coursework.

Other benefits...

Simply studying abroad in any country waives a

Global marker, and depending on the program, a Global Non-Western marker. Speak with ENG and IPC advisors for more details.

Do I need to know a foreign language?

While studying abroad is an ideal time to complete foreign language requirements or learn a new language, most international programs offer extensive coursework in English available to exchange students.

Can I Afford It?

Yes! On semester or year-long exchange programs, students pay regular UNCG tuition and fees. Housing and meal costs are typically equivalent to a semester in residence at UNCG. Any financial aid received at UNCG can be applied to the program costs. In addition, students are eligible to receive travel grants to help offset the costs of airfare.
